Infrastructures

1. Bridge - bridge investment
2. Bridge -Bridges
3. Development control - development - Common sense where to build
4. Development control – development - Stop developers ruining our community
5. Development control – housing - more sympathetic, less dense housing planning to reflect rural ambience.

9. Development control – Planning
10. Development control – planning - advice on planning
11. development control - planning - Bad planning decisions
12. Development control - planning - Fair treatment in planning process
13. Development control - planning - stricter planning - sticking to developments in urban rather than rural. expanding on q24 - despite a number of variants on the local plan offering assurances that the character of the largely rural moray constituency would not be changed for the worse by rampant property development, the evidence is that far too many ad hoc decisions are still being made (or worse, good decisions are overturned by councillors or, even worse, by appeals to Scottish executive) which allow a kind of urban sprawl outwith the limits of some villages...or often where there is no identifiable village at all. definite tightening needed. the only people who are quite possible not particularly economically active in the area i.e.: the wealthy retired, the extra wealthy with no need to work or who can easily work from home. anyone with a job in a town or city, anyone with a family who needs to be near schools, those who might need to be within better reach of a GP or hospital...are not those clamouring (if indeed the "clamour" is not perhaps a myth in any case...I see a lot of rural housing awaiting sale) for houses in green fields with no bus routes or on narrow lanes blocked by winter snows.
14. Development control – planning - think very carefully about planning and new developments and their future impact
15. Development control - warrants - building warrant for new home
16. Direct Services - They want their roads protected and feel that the Council has a good waste collection service. They also value street-lighting and would not want to see budgets slashed in these three areas. There was some concern about the Council's decision to stop cutting communal grass as often and felt that it did not create a good impression of the area. (Focus group)
