44. central/corporate services with other authorities/providers to reduce costs 45. clearly define the role of each partner and who is responsible 46. Closer liaison. 47. closer links between partners 48. continue constructive/meaningful commissioning with 3rd sector - longer contracts/sustainable arrangements to enable their planning processes 49. coordination of services 50. ensuring that they work together 51. Implementing structures to ensure all partners are involved, actively. 52. improve external linkages with key agencies elsewhere 53. Improving collaboration 54. Joined up services 55. keep working towards partnerships which make services work more efficiently 56. Liaise with each other 57. Merge cross working functionality with partners and neighbours e.g. HR, Finance, IT, Procurement, Comms, Legal, Facilities etc. Spend to save on eGov: online forms, apps, corporate management systems which talk to each other, automate functionality. 58. more joint working between health and social services 59. More proactive Actual Partnership working and not just on paper 60. not sure how many community partnership meetings there are but I suspect they are too few and too long. should be frequent but very short and preferably with the same representative from each partner every time 61. partnership working including charities 62. protecting budgets to the detriment to real partnership working 63. real partnership working 64. real partnership working rather than a talk shop 65. share procurement 66. Start holding partners to account and ensuring partners deliver what they should be doing instead of the council assuming delivery when it is not obliged to do so. 67. Stop throwing money away on needless services, downsizing in non-critical

areas, sharing more resources
68. upstream approach - proactive - engage with early years more.
69. Work across political, organisational and geographical borders
70. work together more

Partner Response:

Whilst we have a lot of good examples of joint working and collaboration there is a strong sense from many people that more could be done in this area. Some action is in hand such as the Moray Integrated Joint Board for Health and Social Care, which is looking at opportunities to provide care in the most streamlined and safe manner. Work has started with a cross-party group of councillors to identify further opportunities for shared services and collaboration and this will be developed as a matter of priority with new councillors after May 2017.

Responded by: Mark Palmer, Corporate Director (Corporate Services) Moray Council
